“ There are not enough words in the English language to convey just how much you mean/meant to me and yet, forming a complete thought is impossible, especially if it means I have to acknowledge you're truly gone.

You were my sister, my best friend, my person. I don't know how I'll exist in this world without you, knowing my twin soul isn't here with me. These past couple of years have been rough, I know, and I do take some comfort in knowing you're no longer hurting.

Thank you for always being there for me and being such a great friend and sister. I'm picturing you eating all the good stuff and reading all the books and painting and writing again. I hope you know just how much I love you. I'll be missing you until we see each other again, Emiliah.

“ There are too many things to say here. I can't keep track of how many times I've picked up my phone to text you in the last 6 days. 26 years of best-friendship. This place will never be the same again.

“ Dear, sweet Emily.

We met on one of my first days working in the library almost fifteen years ago, and I liked you immediately because you insisted I keep reading children's books.

One favorite memory with you was when I got my car stuck looking for the trail to High Falls, and YOU volunteered to steer my car up an impossible driveway behind the tow truck while I waited at the top of the road with my dog. You were like a storybook heroine!

I don't know what to say. I love you, I'll miss you here, and I'll be picturing you hiking alongside me next time I'm out in the woods.
